SERVING THE SENATE'S PROCESS.

How the Sergeant-at-Arms Served Notice on the President—An Amusing Description.

"And the Sergeant-at-Arms be directed to summon Andrew Johnson, President of the United States to appear at the bar of the Senate on the 15th of March."

Who is the Sergeant-at-Arms referred to in this resolution of Senator Howard? He bears the dreadful name of Brown, and is the sleekest, sedatest, most civilian of ogres, though inheriting a military title.

Pray, dismiss from your minds the picture of a person in the costume of a cross-bowman or arquebusier, wielding a ponderous mace in one hand and striking the floor with a shadded halberd. That perished tradition exists in our days only to adorn the body-guard of the Pope, or to make a figure in some historical painting. Brown, the Sergeant, wears black clothes; his hair is nearly white; he looks like a Sunday School Superintendent, and his title is one of the miserable shadows of the monarchy we abjured foisted upon the republic, probably by some old Virginia patriot, who had been reading "Ivanhoe." There is no more appropriateness in calling him Sergeant-at-Arms, than in addressing your oldest boy at school as Tommy Wilkins, Esq. His title ought to be Usher of the Senate of National Tipstave.

MR. BROWN'S VISIT TO MR. JOHNSON.

This dreadful Brown, proceeding to cite the usurping Johnson to the bar, the bar! mind you, of the Senate—though where that is I never heard, unless it be the identical bar Mr. Johnson patronized three years ago—this cowdog Brown was guilty of an act so atrociously modern in its character that I must tell you of it. He did not order the herald to sound; he never cried, "Oh, warder, on the instant bring three score of spearmen ready to ride forth!" He took a street car. I observed him all alone, accoutred as he was in a cotton umbrella, overalls, a stove-pipe, but considerably abraded, and a big envelope, with sealing-wax on it, place his digits in his breeches pocket, and produce ten cents. This he projected through a hole in the car door, and the driver, who neither trembled nor turned pale, returned a miniature envelope. From this envelope the Sergeant-at-Arms removed seven cents. He dropped them down a transparent box. I saw them lie all visible in an instant. "Heavens!" I exclaimed, "had this man not seven cents the usurper might evade justice forever!" Thus little matters make the history of States. Looking at these silent nickles, reposing on their sill, I said to myself again, "Were it in my power to filch them, and by the ejection of this man from the car, save the President, would I do it?"

While th filled with this consideration I heard the clicking of a bell. The nickels dropped with a hollow sound. It was too late to preserve the second Jackson.. When Mr. Brown had paid his fare he looked in a benignant way at the lamps go by. Before the glaring lights of the Babett House I saw Sunset Cox stand like the last Indian on the brink of the Pacific. He looked revolution, famine, Wilkes Booth—all that is smothered despair and unrequited patriotism. Beside him stood Ross Browne, genial, gentlemanly, amicable Browne. Why not confirm him that he may satirize the Chinese? Delightful fellow that he is, to-night he looks to be the pillory of anxiety. The remorseless car rolled on. We saw the lamp in Stanton's window, where he slepts on guard over the haversack of the republic.—Then through the night we saw the youthful Jackson at New Orleans, riding his green rocking horse in eternal juvenescence, and dismounting, while Browne ascended the steps of the White House.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

The palace of the Usurper stood whitely out in the night, its symmetrical screen and portico revealed beneath the crystal lamp. The polished windows were full of diamond-like reflections. Within the fell tyrant probably gnawed the bones of his victims. I thought it was a splendid example of moral courage; the one man named Brown venturing into the lion's den. A soldier stood within the doorway as we crossed the portal, his musket at present arms. The ponderous door swung to behind us. Now, indeed, is Cromwell braved in his castle keep. We climed the broad stairs. I saw the Sergeant-at-Arms draw his gauntlet. A thick-set, curly-haired man met him at the top of the stairs. He greeted the physical power of the Senate thus:

"Why, Mr. Brown, good evening to you!"

"Kershaw!" asks the majesty of the Senate, doffing his feudal rank. "I'm obliged to you. I'm very well. Is the President engaged."

These were plain words for a heraldic effort. Other myrmidons of the Usurper came forward, the Brian von Wordon, with spectacles over his ears, among them. He writes for eleven hundred papers, and is supposed to sleep with Mr. Johnson that he may hear the profound thoughts of his tyrant dreams. My heart sickened with this despicable modernization of a grave and thrilling duty. I would have given worlds to have heard a "What, ho!" or "Bring forth your master, slave!"

"Mr. Brown," said Kershaw, decsily, "the President will see you directly."

In five minutes the door was flung open.

"The Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate!" cried Kershaw.

Hal ha! this smacked of the days of single combat. The man named Brown was in the presence of the Usurper!

Again my soul recoiled in disappointment. The tyrant advanced, white as lime, hand stretched out.

"Good evening, Mr. President," he said.

"Good evening, Mr. Brown," he said.

"Quite well, Mr. Brown. Is your family well?"

"Very well, Mr. President. It is a warm night. We are about to have a thaw."

I murmured to myself, lamenting the chivalrous expressions of the past. "Thaw, indeed! what has thaw to do with States and eras?"

This man Brown took from his pocket an envelopie with a blurred red seal. It was only wax. This was his summons.

"Mr. Brown," said the tyrant, "I'll attend to this matter. Thank you, sir." And he smiled. I rushed from the apartment and thought, is it thus we make history?

Is Consumption Contagious.

Popular belief has been generally on the side of the contagiousness of pulmonary consumption. In southern Europe, it is a part of sanitary legislation to destroy the clothes and bedding of those who have died of this disease. Until recently, the opinions of medical men have leaned to the other side. Experiments and observations now being made in Europe seem to show that tubercle introduced by inoculation into the body of a healthy animal will give rise to tuberculosis, or the formation and deposit of the like matter in the lungs and organs. Dr. Gerhard terminates his paper on the treatment of scrofulous ulcers by some remarks on the transmission of pulmonary consumption from one person to another, when sleeping in the same bed. He says: "I should set down the probability of consumption occurring to persons thus exposed to contagion, as husband and wife, two sisters or two brothers, sleeping together in close rooms, to be at least three-fold greater than ordinary, if they be long exposed to inhale the exhalations from one patient to another."

Remarkable Periods of Cold.

In 1133 the Po was frozen from Cremona to the sea. Wine casks were burst and some trees split by the action of the frost, with immense noise.

1234—Loaded wagons crossed the Adriatic to Venice.

1236—The Danube was frozen to the bottom and remained so for a long time.

1292—The Rhine was crossed by loaded wagons, and travelers crossed on the ice from Norway to Jutland.

1323—Foot and horse travelers crossed from Denmark to Lubec and Dantzic.

1334—All the rivers of Italy were frozen over.

1403—The wolves were frozen by the cold in Denmark, and people crossed the ice to Jutland.

1434—It snowed forty days without interruption.

1468—The wine distributed to the soldiers in Flanders was cut in pieces with hatchets.

1631-32—All the rivers of Europe were frozen from the Zuyder Zee; the Hellespont was covered with a sheet of ice.

1658—Charles X. of Sweden, crossed from Holstein to Denmark with his whole army, foot, horse baggage and artillery.

1664—The Thames, in England, was covered with ice sixty-one inches thick; almost all the birds perished.

1695—Many people were frozen to death in Germany.

1700—Occurred the famous winter called, by distinction, "The Cold Winter." All the rivers and lakes were frozen, and even the sea for several miles from the shore. The ground was frozen, in England, nine feet deep. Birds and beasts were struck dead in the field, and men perished by thousands in their houses. In the south of France, the olive trees were killed, and the wine plantations were mostly destroyed.—The Adriatic sea was frozen, and even the Mediterranian about Genoa; and the citron and orange groves suffered extremely in the finest parts of Italy.

1716—The winter was so intense that people traveled across the straits from Copenhagen to the province of Scnia, in Sweden. Fairs were held on the river Thames.

1740—An ox was roasted whole upon the Thames. The winter was scarcely inferior to that of 1700. The snow lay ten feet deep in Spain and Portugal. The Zuyder Zee was frozen over, and thousands of people went over it, and the lakes in England were frozen over. During the hard frost, a palace was built of ice, at St. Petersburg, after an elegant model, and in the just proportions of Augustan architecture.

1744—Snow fell in Portugal to the depth of twenty-three feet on the level. This was a summer winter in New England, according to Parson Smith's journal.

1774-75—The winters were very severe. The Great Belt was frozen over. In 1774, on the 11th of January, the thermometer, in Portland, Me., was 44 deg. below zero, and on the 22d at the bottom of the plate.

1810, Jan. 13—Quicksilver was frozen hard at Moscow.

1848, Jan. 11—At Portland, thermometer 16 to 20 deg. below zero. At Boston, 11 deg. below. In some parts of New England the thermometer stood at 30 and 40 deg., and the day was known as the "Cold Tuesday."

1850—The winter, mild in this country, was particularly severe in Europe. Thus, for the first time in the present century, the Po was frozen over at Ferrara, cutting for a long period the constant passage of man and beast. At Constantinople, on the 3d of February, snow had fallen without interruption for fifteen days. There had not been a winter of equal severity for more than twenty years. The snow extended to Smyrna and the adjacent districts of Asia Minor, and the Greek Islands were clothed in white, an appearance unusual and remarkable.

Commodore Vanderbilt's Stables.

From the New York Commercial.

The stables which contain the blooded stock of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt are in Fourth street, just out of Broadway. The front of the building is of brown stone, plainly and substantially built, and has two entrances, one for carriages, and the other for workmen and visitors. Directly from the entrance is a long hallway, paved with small cobble stones, and in which are the hydrants used for washing the horses and carriages. Following this passage, you enter the hippodrome of the building, which is very large and very high, and ventilated in the most perfect manner. The hippodrome is also paved with cobble stones, and in the centre of it stand the carriages, buggies, wagons and sleighs. An oblong track of saw-dust is to be found here also, in which the horses are exercised by small boys engaged for that purpose. On the right front of the building is the harness room, and everything in it looks as neat as a new pin. Directly under this room, following a step way and at the extreme end of the hippodrome are two handsome stalls in which are kept those costly animals that the Commodore values as the "apple of his eye," Mountain Boy and Mountain Girl, the name of each being painted in large letters over the door. The stable, altogether contains seven horses, five of which are of very great value. Mountain Boy, the horse about which so much excitement was created, when it was thought that a match would be made between him and Dexter, is a bright bay of medium size, well and firmly put together with clean, slender limbs, and a splendid barrel; his head, although not the prettiest part of him, is well made, and contains a soft, clear eye. The best time this horse has made was in private the figure being 2:21, but the track was in a bad condition, and the judges admitted quite three seconds slow. Besides this, the horse has made seven heats in public, in none of which has he ever been known to break, thus proving, if not yet having made the fastest time, to certainly have made the surest driving. The time made in the heats averaged 2:23 and 2:24. Mountain girl, in color and build, is a perfect match for Mountain Boy, and she has made her mile in 2:35. Post Boy, a horse well known to many, is a beautiful blood bay, long and slender built, with a bright intelligent eye, and a head that would answer as a model for a painter. The Boy is getting along in years now, but care and attention keep him sound. He has made the half-mile polef with his old mate, Plough Boy, in 1:10. The next of the favorites is the bay mare Boston Girl. She is a stout, short, and powerfully built animal, with every indication of great endurance, with an eye like a gazelle, and an ear as delicate in its outlines as that of a mouse. She has accomplished her mile in 2:30. By the side of this animal stands the Jeffers colt, a pretty little bay, of great power, but whose speed has never yet been tested sufficiently to make it public. He has however given evidences that he will one day make for himself a name and a fame that will not disgrace his blood. These two animals are the chosen of the Commodore's heart for sleighing, and behind their swift heels the old gentleman, hale and hearty, may be seen enjoying the road with as much gusto as ever. The other two horses, comprising the number, are a pair of handsome browns, and are only used as carriage horses.—Commodore Vanderbilt believes in blooded horses, and also believes that gentlemen should enjoy them.

Will Napoleon Give up the Game?

A rumor obtains in Paris that the Emperor will soon publish another letter, of the same tenor as the famous one last year in which reforms were promised, which were not, after all, granted. Its appearance, it is said, will be the signal for the resignation of M. Rouher, who, rumor adds, will be charged with the duty of forming a responsible ministry after the English pattern.

Those who credit this report, say that the Emperor is turning liberal in order to check the zeal of his own party; that the reactionaries are carrying things too far for him; and that he finds himself compelled, in self-defence, to make up with the liberals.

It is possible that Napoleon, in infirm health, seeing himself beaten in Mexico, Italy and Germany, and alarmed at the attitude which has attended his schemes, feels like giving up the great game which he has so long tried to play, of rule or ruin. But it is pretty certain that the liberals who trust him will get cheated, and that Prapto will enjoy neither liberty nor an economical administration while he remains on the throne.

A New Haven fireman named Wm. Daley committed suicide by shooting himself with a pistol last Thursday morning, from depression of spirits, caused by his inability to get his engine to a fire the night before, on account of the balking of the horses.

Expected Attack from the Virginia Shore

NEW YORK, March 16

The Herald's Washington special dispatch contains the following. It is understood that the expectation of an attack from the Virginia shore, has, within the past few days, taken a more substantial form than was at first anticipated. It is known that an order has just been issued in the War Department directing forty army wagons with teams and teamsters to be kept in readiness to move at a moment's notice for the transportation of supplies. Private orders have also been issued to the commanders of garrisons about there to keep their commands, both officers and men, in quarters.

Health of Thad. Stevens.

Since the excitement of Friday last, the health of Thad. Stevens has taken a more serious evidence of decline than at any other time since his arrival here, and it is thought by those intimately acquainted with every phase of his failing condition, that it is very doubtful whether he will again be able to leave his room. Mr Stevens has a negro servant, towards whom he has always been particularly kind, and every morning upon his entering his room, he calls him by name. This morning his servant on entering the room as usual, Mr Stevens was observed to look at him, but apparently failed to recognize him. This indication of so great a change was observed by several of Mr Stevens' household, who were in the room at the time. Several members of Congress who called to day upon business of an important nature, were requested not to insist upon seeing Mr Stevens. The greatest fears are now entertained that Mr Stevens' days of duty have ended.

General News.

A delegation of Indian chiefs are here en route from Washington home, where they have been in expectation of straightening affairs in their interest. Their visit to Washington did not, however, accomplish the desired result, owing to the political storm raging there, and they return to their people with anything but pleasant news.

Neither Mr Tyng, Jr, nor his father alluded to the admonition given to the former on Saturday, in their sermons yesterday.

The Times' Washington special says. Hundreds of applications are being made for office under Mr Wade when he becomes President.

Gen Sickles after being summoned before the Impeachment Committee, will proceed to his regiment, at Sacketts Harbor.

The Tribune's special says. It is reported that Gen Hancock has been telegraphed to by the President to return immediately to Washington to take command of the Atlantic Division.

The Indian Peace Commission will meet at Omaha on the 2d of April. All members expect to be present except Mr Henderson. Generals Sheridan and Augur will also attend. It is to form two parties to visit the Indian settlements, one to go to Fort Laramie and the other to New Mexico.

In the Supreme Court to day Judge Barnard, upon the Erie Railway case coming up, stated that an injunction had been served upon him by Judge Clark, staying all further proceedings until the first Monday in April, and he adjourned the matter till to-morrow.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS

Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 16

The Chair submitted a petition from the South Carolina Convention for the repeal of duty on rice and communications from the Georgia Convention, asking an appropriation of one hundred thousand dollars for repairs and the construction of certain roads. Referred.

The Senate insisted on its amendments to the bill to facilitate the payment of soldiers bounties and also to the pension bill, which has been disagreed to by the House.

Mr Edmunds, from the Committee on Judiciary, reported favorably with amendments to the bills relative to appeals to court claims, also with a recommendation to indefinately postpone the bill relative to testimony of the same courts.

Mr Cattell, from the Committee on Finance, reported a bill amendatory to the currency act of June 3, 1864.

Mr Sherman, from the Committee on Finance, reported the House bill to exempt certain manufactures from internal tax, with an amendment retaining the tax on turpentine, coffee, roasted or ground, and all articles intended as substitutes for coffee, spices, mustard, refined sugars, and on products of sugar refiners, on sugar, candy, and confectionary, on diamonds, emeralds, precious stones, and imitations, and on all jewelry. The bill leaves a tax on lucifer or friction matches and on all other stamp duties unchanged. He gave notice that he would call it up to morrow.

Mr Fowler introduced a bill to provide for a survey of the Mississippi River. Referred to the Committee on Territories.

On motion of Mr Howard the Senate took up the bill relating to the Central Branch of the Union Pacific Railroad.

Mr Johnson advocated the bill at length.

Mr Morrill offered a verbal amendment in effect which would be to provide that no subsidy of the United States bonds shall be allowed this branch, beyond the allowance of one hundred miles, which bonds already authorized, be issued.

Mr Conkling spoke at length against the bill.

Messrs Pomeroy and Howard replied to Mr Conkling, and after further discussion by Mr Edmunds and others the Senate went into executive session and soon after adjourned.

House.

Bills authorizing the holding of District Courts at Evansville and New Albany; authorizing the erection of a Marine Hospital at Cairo, were introduced. Also bills providing that officers of the army, including those of the Veteran Reserve Corps, be entitled to be retired under the same conditions as officers wounded in the regular army, to promote American commerce by enacting tonnage duty to be collected on vessels from foreign parts; allowing drawback on shipbuilders materials and repealing the first section of the act of July 14th, 1862, for the collection of revenue upon northern, northeastern and northwestern frontiers.

Mr Garfield presented a petition signed by one hundred and nine German citizens of Cleveland, asking that the Constitution be so amended as to abolish the office of President of the United States. Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr Ross offered a preamble and sixteen resolutions, reciting that the Fortieth Congress be charged with disloyalty to the Government, and with a purpose to subvert and destroy the essential principles and just balance on which it rests, and declaring the Constitution is supreme and paramount law of the land; that Congress will faithfully abide by and strenuously maintain the essential and fundamental principles of a free government, that Congress will oppose all effort to render military independent and superior to civil power, that it opposes all efforts to deprive people of the rights of the habeas corpus and trial by jury, that it will oppose the encroachment of one department of the government on another; that free speech, free press, and free ballot, are essential to liberty, and cannot be surrendered, that Congress is opposed to a large standing army; that speculation and frauds on the Treasury should be stopped; that each State shall regulate the suffrage within its own limits, that no government bonds shall be issued, not subject to some rate of taxation as other property, that national bank notes shall be withdrawn and legal tender notes substituted.

The House refused the second previous question which was moved by Mr. Ross, who then moved to lay the resolutions on the table and called for yeas and nays, remarking that he did so in order that members might put themselves on record.

The House refused to table the resolutions, and on motion of Mr Ashley, of Ohio, they were referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr Ingersoll offered a resolution providing that for the purpose of relieving the business of the country from the depressed condition to which it had been brought by retiring legal tender notes from the volume of the currency, by the Secretary of the Treasury to an amount of legal tender notes from the volume of the currency by the Secretary of the Treasury to an amount of legal tender notes equal in amount to that heretofore retired, shall be issued and restored to currency, and that the amount of legal tender notes so restored shall be used only in purchasing for cancellation any of the gold interest bearing bonds. He moved the previous question be refused and the resolution be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. Ingersoll hoped the previous question would be seconded and that the House vote yes or no on the question. The previous question being not seconded, then, on motion, Mr Blaine's resolution be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

The morning hour having expired, Mr. Butler moved to suspend the rules to enable him to submit a motion that during the trial of the impeachment of the President, and until its conclusion, it shall be in order on any day to move the suspension of rules on motions connected with or growing out of the question of impeachment. Agreed to.

The rules having been suspended, Mr Butler offered the following resolution. That, except during the moring hours of Monday, the rules may be suspended during the pending of the impeachment of the President to proceed to the consideration of any matter which may be reported by the Managers on the part of the House of Representatives.

Mr Wood made a point of order that there was no resolution to which the House suspended the rules in order to have offered the first motion, it had been restricted to the matter connected with impeachment, but the resolution contained no such restriction.

The Speaker sustained the point of order.

Mr Butler then offered the second resolution as an amendment to the first.

Mr. Ross moved to lay the resolution and amendment on the table. Negatived. The amendment was then agreed to, and that resolution as amended adopted.

Adjourned.

WASHINGTON.

Supreme Court Decisions.

WASHINGTON, March 16

The United States Supreme Court to-day decided unconstitutional the law of the State of Nevada levying a tax of one dollar on every passenger leaving the State by coach or railroad.

The Court granted leave to file a bill in the case of the State of Georgia vs Gen Grant and others.

Bills Introduced

In the House, under call of States, a bill was introduced and referred repealing that portion of the act fixing the number of Judges of the Supreme Court, which provides that no vacancies are to be filled until the number of Associate Justices be reduced to six, providing for saving expenses in the legislative department, refunding amounts paid by private subscription towards the improvement of the harbor at Michigan City, establishing a District Court at Parkersburg.

SCHNECTADY

Inundated

SCHNECTADY, N Y, March 16

The water in the Mohawk at this point is thirteen feet above low water and rising rapidly. The south west portion of the city is partially inundated. The ice remains immovable, but it is thought it will break up during the night. The canal banks are overflowed west of the city, and the locks are filled with water.

INDIANAPOLIS

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD, TITUSVILLE, March 16, 1868—11 P M

There was more activity in the market to day, and at points north of Petroleum Center the inquiry was fair. At the latter place there was some falling off in the inquiry partly on account of the uncertainty in regard to matters about Oil City, and the highest price reported was $2 65, a decline of five cents from the best figures of Saturday last. The sales made at the wells were as follows. 1000 bbls, on the Woods Farm by the land interest for the New York market at $2 55, 1,000 bbls on Bull Run at $2 25, 1,000 bbls, on the Woods Farm, for the Pittsburgh market by the land interest at $2 55. The following sales were made delivered five carloads at Gregg's switch for the New York market on private terms, six carloads at points north of Petroleum Center for the New York market at $3 63½.

We quote

Crude at Pioneer delivered on the cars, 40 to 49 gr	$2 60@. 65
Crude at Titusville delivered on the cars, 40 to 49 gr	2 65@2 70
Crude at Petroleum Center delivered on the cars, 40 to 49 gr	2 65
Crude at Miller delivered, 40 to 47 gr	$2 60@2 65

The amount and destination of Petroleum reported purchased to day between Titusville and the Hyde and Egbert Farms were as follows

To New York, bbls	2000

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY will relieve the Pressure and Pain in the Head caused by sudden attacks of cold, and in a short time will cure the disease entirely.

One Hundred Thousand Persons annually die in this country of Consumption. There is the highest medical authority for saying that with fully one-half if not two-thirds of this number, the disease first commenced as a CATARRH IN THE NOSE OR HEAD. The next step being to the Throat and Bronchial Tubes. Lastly, the Lungs. CATARRH CAN BE CURED. Bronchial Affections can be Cured, but CONSUMPTION CANNOT, therefore it should be prevented while possible.

Dr Sage, who is a graduate of one of the first Medical Colleges in the land, has been a practising physician and Surgeon for the past twenty years. He was a great sufferer for many years from Chronic Catarrh, and he succeeded in discovering this remedy which effected a PERFECT AND REMOVAL CURE in his own, and subsequently in hundreds of other cases of this distressing malady. The remedy contains no mineral or other poison. It produces instant ease and is mild and pleasant to use.

THE ROBERTS TORPEDO COMPANY.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

The following is a brief summary of the RIGHTS AND CLAIMS OF THE ROBERTS TORPEDO COMPANY, which rights they intend to enforce against all parties violating the same.

The rights of said Company consist of three Patents issued and granted by the United States to E. A. L. Roberts for explosion of Torpedoes in oil bearing rock, together with the assignment of six other Patents for the exclusive right to use Nitro-Glycerine and other powerful explosive materials for the uses and purposes in the other Patents mentioned.

In the various legal conflicts relating to the Patents above mentioned, volumes of testimony have been taken and some of the best legal talent in the country has been employed in opposition to the Company, but after a contest of over two years, it was decided by the Supreme Court of the United States that Col Roberts was the first to discover the practicability and invent the means of increasing the capacity of oil wells in the oil bearing rock by exploding Torpedoes therein.

That since the organization of said Company, in order to protect their rights, it has been deemed necessary to commence suits against several persons, among whom are Alexander Hamer, Albert E. Nickerson, and Kent & Mellner, (operators,) and Squire & Parke (manufacturers.) That during the trial of said several cases, the pretended claim of William Reed and others in relation to being the discoverers and first to apply Torpedoes in oil wells, was fully investigated, and notwithstanding the said pretended claim of Reed and others, judgment was obtained in the United States Court against the several parties defendants in said suits, and permanent injunctions issued against all of them. And in order further to protect the interests of said Company, suits have been commenced in the United States Court and injunctions obtained against Frederick T Munson, of Rouseville, Venango county, Pa., and George W VanVliet, of Pithole, in said county. And in addition to the above suits, in which injunctions have already been obtained, in order to protect the just rights and interests of said Company, a suit has been commenced against Sherman Camp, of Rouseville, and proceedings instituted against the Reed Torpedo Company, of Rouseville, Pa., William Reed, William Phillips, Ralph Pettibone and J B Stubbs, officers of said Reed Torpedo Company, their agents and employees and all other persons known to have purchased Torpedoes of them or any of them.

In view of the benefit resulting from the use of Torpedoes and the liberal patronage of the community, in order that all parties may avail themselves of them, this Company is prepared to furnish Torpedoes at a price much less than heretofore.

While the Company do not court litigation they deem it proper to place these facts before the public in order that innocent parties may not be led into difficulty by false statements of individuals, or circulars of Companies, who are pirating their rights, as suits will be immediately brought against all persons, who, either use or purchase Torpedoes of any except them or their authorized agents, as their Patents cover the exclusive right to explode Torpedoes in oil wells.

The Sugar Season.

BY ALICE CAREY.

[illegible]
And the year is in breaking,
[illegible] for the first,
[illegible] work of sugar making.

'Tis the wild and windy March
[illegible] the sap
[illegible] to mend the pipes
And to move the rusty kettles!

Time to set the hut to rights,
Where the girls and boys together
Tend the furnace fire o'nights
In the rough and rainy weather;

Time to hew and shape the trough,
And to patch the spile so hollow,
For the sweet is flowing off
And the sugar-days must follow.

Soon the blue-birds and the bees
Over the maples will be winging;
So 'tis time to tap the trees
And to set the axe a-ringing.

Oh, the gladdest time of year
Is the merry sugar making,
When the swallows first appear
And the sleepy buds are waking!

THE

American Cooking Stove

IN COURT.

At an adjourned term of the Circuit Court of the United States, for the Northern District of New York, in the second circuit held at the City Hall, in the city of Albany, the 19th day of January, in the year of our Lord 1868.

PRESENT:
The Honorable NAHUM K. HALL, Judge.

JACOB H. SHEAR & JOSIAH PACKARD, vs GEORGE N. BULL & JOHN M. ROCKWELL. } In Equity.

It is further ordered, adjudged and decreed, that a perpetual injunction be issued in this suit against the defendants, restraining them from further infringements of said Patent No. 51,606, dated Dec. 5th, 1866, for improvements in cooking stoves, pursuant to and in accordance with the prayer of the Bill of Complaint.

(Signed) A. A. BOYD, Clerk.

The above suit was instituted for infringement of the Patent securing the manner of fitting the ash pan in the hearth of the American Cooking Stove, and for the combination of the hinged ash pan. We have repeatedly cautioned the public against selling or using stoves with these improvements not manufactured by us. All persons now selling or using stoves with these improvements in violation of the above injunction, without license from us, will be liable to fine and imprisonment.

A Library of Universal Information.

THE NEW

AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA:

A Popular Dictionary of General Knowledge.

EDITED BY

GEORGE RIPLEY AND CHARLES A. DANA,

AIDED BY A NUMEROUS SELECT CORPS OF WRITERS, IN ALL BRANCHES OF SCIENCE, ART AND LITERATURE.

In 16 large volumes, 8vo.

750 double-column pages in each volume.

The leading claims to public consideration which the New American Cyclopædia possesses may be thus briefly stated:

"1. It surpasses all other works in the fullness and ability of the articles relating to the United States.

"2. No other work contains so many reliable biographies of the leading men of this and other nations. In this respect it is far superior even to the more bulky Encyclopædia Britannica.

"3. The best minds in this country have been employed in enriching its pages with the latest data, and the most recent discoveries in every branch of manufactures, mechanics, and general science.

"4. It is a library in itself, where every topic is treated, and where information can be gleaned which will enable a student, if he is so disposed, to consult other authorities, thus affording him an invaluable key to knowledge.

"5. It is neatly printed, with readable type, on good paper, and contains a most copious index.

"6. It is the only work which gives anything approaching correct descriptions of cities and towns of America, or embraces reliable statistics showing the wonderful growth of all sections."

Every one that reads, every one that mingles in society, is constantly meeting with allusions to subjects on which he needs and desires further information. In conversation, in trade, in professional life, on the farm, in the family, practical questions are continually arising, which no man, well read or not, can always satisfactorily answer. It is little for reference are at hand, they are consulted, and not only is the curiosity satisfied, and stock of knowledge increased, but perhaps information is gained and ideas are suggested that will directly contribute to the business success of the party concerned.

A Cyclopædia is pre-eminently the work for our country and generation. This is the age of steam. No one has time to grope among a hundred different works for every little fact required, without the certainty of finding it at last. With a Cyclopædia, embracing every conceivable subject, and having its topics alphabetically arranged, not a moment is lost. The matter in question is found at once, digested, condensed, stripped of all that is irrelevant and unnecessary, and verified by a comparison of the best authorities. Moreover, while only men of fortune can collect a library complete in all the departments of knowledge, a Cyclopædia worth in itself for purposes of reference at least a thousand volumes, is within the reach of all,—the clerk, the merchant, the professional man, the farmer, the mechanic. In a country like ours, where the humblest may be called to responsible positions requiring intelligence and general information, the value of such a work cannot be over-estimated.
